

REMARKS/ARGUMENTS

Applicants greatly appreciate the indication of allowable subject matter, to which the application has been limited.

Specifically, Claim 1 has been amended to incorporate allowable Claim 4. This incorporation necessarily includes the limitations of intervening Claim 3, which defined the same variables as did allowable Claim 4 (i.e., R<sub>1</sub>, A, X, etc.). Because R<sub>1</sub> can no longer be a dimethylamino group or a methylethylamino group the provisos at the end of Claim 1 have been eliminated as superfluous. Allowable Claim 5 now depends from allowable Claim 1.

Allowable Claim 8 has been placed in independent form, incorporating the limitations of intervening Claims 6 and 7. The proviso from Claim 6 regarding a dimethylamino group is again not necessary in view of the definition of R<sub>1</sub>. Allowable Claim 9 depends from allowable Claim 8.

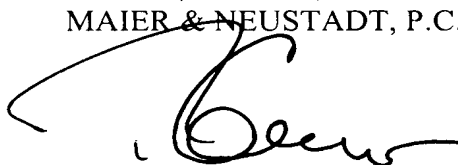

Claim 20 has been limited to the subject matter of allowable Claims 21- 27 (see page 9, bottom, of the Official Action). Allowable Claims 28 and 29 are in independent form.

Finally, Applicants have left Claims 17 - 19 pending, and have prepared a parallel set of claims (New Claims 33 and 34), all of which are directed to a method for preparing the allowable compounds. These claims are themselves allowable as they require all the limitations of the allowable claims. See, In re Ochiai, 37 USPQ2d 1127 (Fed. Cir. 1995).

Accordingly, Applicants request an early Notice of Allowance.

Respectfully submitted,

OBLON, SPIVAK, McCLELLAND,
MAIER & NEUSTADT, P.C.
